Information Systems Lecture Series

Financial Analyst to CIO?
Yes, It Happened to Me

Presented by:
Christine Haile
Chief Information Officer
University at Albany
Thursday, February 2, 2012
4:30 p.m., Key Auditorium
(RB Hall Room 202)

Christine E. Haile has been Chief Information Officer at the University at Albany since 2001. She started her career as a Financial Analyst at the SUNY System headquarters in downtown Albany. Before moving to UAlbany, she was Associate Provost for Technology Services.

As CIO, she has responsibility for all aspects of information technology: networks, classroom technology, Blackboard, phones, student information, financial systems, research computing, hardware and software. She manages a workforce of 125 and a $15M budget.

Chris lives in Albany, just off Lark Street. She runs, golfs, kayaks and snowshoes; and is active in the Historic Albany Foundation. Her personal technology at the moment is a Dell laptop, an iPad and an iPhone. Her undergraduate major was Political Science at Potsdam, and has an MBA from UAlbany.